HOW MATCHES ARE MADE.

A match is a small thing. We seidom pause to think, after it has per-formed its mission, and we have carelessly thrown it away, that It less a his-tory of its own, and that, like some more pretentions things, its journey from the forest to the march safe is full of changes.

The match of to day has a story for more interesting than that of the old fashioned match. As we have said, much of the timber used in the manefacture comes from the immense trac's of forest in the Hudson Hay Territory.

t is floated down the water courses to the lakes, through which it is towed in great log rafts. These rafts are dividd: some parts are pulled through the canals, and some by other means are taken to market. When well through the seasoning process, which occupies from one to two years, the pine is cut up into blocks twice as long as a match, and about eight inches wide by two inches thick. These blocks are passed

SUSDING CLOVER.

Growing Clover is an important sub just to farmers in this region, so near s weral large cities, which make demand for and require to be supplied with large quantities of Hay and Meat Animals-Growing clover is also one of the leaexpensive and most speedy means fo restoring worn out hinds.

Being in Prince George's county, receatly, we saw some fine clover fields; among them one on the farm of W. J. Gertner E. q , was noticeable for its lux-meant growth, owing mostly to his new an I improved manner of pulling in the seed. He had plowed his land deep and thee, and then be had it thoroughly barrowed; a portron of the field he sowed broadcast by hand, in the usual manner; but the wind arose so that he could not thish more than half of the field; consequently, he proceeded to convive a sert of drill or steder, and attached it to the foreside of his land-roller, so that the seed was evenly dropped in front of the roller which passed over it, pressing it well into the soil, so that it was deep covered, enabling the young clover plants to take deep root in the earth, whereby it was able to stand the drouth of the dry season, to make a good stand and obtain a luxuriant growth, which it could not otherwise have done. A further good result was that this youg clover, sowed the past spring, grew on and ripected a rich fill of good sound seed, which is very rare, for clover to ripen plump seed the same season that it is rown, while the stand and growth is twice as good and stout as that sowed by hand, in the same field.

The device for sowing clover seed contrived at home by Mr. Gortner, will La very valuable to all farmers who will use it, as it is very simple and cheap and can be made by any farmer who has a land roller, which every good farmer should have, as it will doubly pay the cost every year in the increase of crops and improvement of the soil, Washington Star. THE VALUE OF HER MANUEL-By what we see on the most of farms we are led to believe that but little value is placed on the hen manure, which is left to accumulate wherever it is dropped, until around some farmers' premises it might be gathered up by the wagen load, Now this, when properly applied to corn or other crops at planting time, has given the best of satisfaction, and the experience of those who have used it is that it is far ahead of any fertilizer that can be bought in the market at $10 per ton. 'Among farmers there is a difference in the manner which this home made fertilizer shall be mixed and ap plied. But the present opinion of those that have tried it for some lime, is that equal parts of hen manuro and plaster well mixed up together and applied on the hill, as soon after planting as it can be conveniently done. Some have tried mixing ashes with the hen manure, but after a trial are well convinced that this is wrong, as the ashes do more hart than good; they weaken the mixture by letting much of its valuable proper-ties escape in the atmosphere. Again, others have applied a mixture of plaster, hen manure and salt, a small handful in the hill and the corn dropped on it.-But when this is done care must be used or it will prove too strong for the corn. It may be placed so close to the corn as to injure the germ so that the seed may not sprout. I once saw a neighbor ap-1ly about a quart of hen manure, as no experiment, to some cablage plants that le was setting out, which his brother said would surely kill them, but it did not; on the contrary it made them grow very finely, and he had a very fine lot of calchage, while some of his neighbors had "pary" a one, although their gardens were in other respects equally as good as his. Let us here say to all that keep fowls, see that they reest in a place

The following sensible advace is taken from a paper read before the American Dairymen's Association, by C. W. Horr, of Ohin, on "How can the profits of dairy husbandry be increased?"

"No father should buy a cow that, after careful investigation, he does not believe will bring him at least $50 worth of milk during the season. He had much better give away a cow, if he owns one, that does not give over $40 worth of milk per year than to keep her during a socies of years, even if he has to bay $70 or a $100 for a five year old cow that will give $70 worth of milk a year. Four cows are dear at any price; really good ones, if young, are never sold too high. Great pains then should be taken in the selection of cows to obtain natural milkers?"

where their droppings can be saved, and they will prove one of the best manner that can be obtained, - Practical Far-

In farmers wish their heas to lay in cold weather, they must supply them with plenty of gravel and him, and fresh meat of any kind chopped into small pieces. The latter should be fed times times weekly. During the winter months eggs are worth twice as much to this market as they are in the spring. and a little extra care and attention to t'e bennery will be well tepaid by an increased yield of eggs. Chickens thrive better on a variety of food, and a data of corn, buckwheat and oa's fed on alternate days will be more conducive to the preservation of health than if either one of these grains were given them.

A Couring School -A school for cooks in our country would pay in more senses than one. The amount of good food spelled every year by had cooking is enotined. Vinness greasy when they without any chance of year. The class bee ought not to have an oleagmons suspi-tion about them; overdone when they night to be rare, or rare when they ought to be well done; or cooked badly in some other way that only ignorance con'd devise, and which neither ignor. ance or knowledge could describe, are the rule rather than the exception on mary tables. A school where, at least, the simpler processes of the culin my art might be explained would supply a much needed want.

Cult aus should be kept free from decaving vegetable substances. The pass-ence of decaying vegetables in cellars is a prolitic cause of diptheria, fevers and A Lealth generally. The impure air or a liais is diffused throughout the dwelling; and if dampness is added to the imparity, the bad effects will be increase el. Dampness of cellars is a frequen cause of consumption, neuralgia, then-matism and other diseases. In short, the cellar needs to be looked to as close. ly as any portion of the house,
